GOVERNOR WILSON BROKE.

The fact that Woodrow Wilson, after resigning from the presidency of Princeton university and prior to his entrance in the political field, felt impelled to apply to the trustees of the Carnegie foundation for a pension, or, as Mr. Wilson styles it, a "retiring allowance," emphasizes a point and by no means creditable condition in our national life.

There are two callings which, if honestly pursued, are distinctly not in the money-making class. One is teaching and the other is politics. Mr. Wilson had spent the better part of a lifetime in one and was about to give it up to enter the other. As a teacher, although he had risen to unusual eminence, he had not been able to accumulate anything. Realizing the great vicissitudes of political life, and perhaps feeling, to put it in homely phrase, that "all that goes up is sure to come down," he deemed it his duty to his family to provide, as far as possible, an insurance against the caprice of political fortune.

There can be no political significance in the application made by Governor Wilson, as some would make it appear. He had a perfect right to make it, even though it subsequently appeared that he was in error in supposing himself to be entitled to the allowance, and his explanation of his reasons for doing so is entirely creditable to himself. But it is a sad commentary that after the many years of active life which he had led, and in spite of the high station which he had reached, he should have found such a step necessary.

When we consider the fact that a scrupulously honest career in public life almost invariably ends in bankruptcy and want, we have little right to complain of corruption in our political officials.

GOOD ROAD BUILDING.

Two thousand people met in Oage, Kan., the other day and held a good roads convention. Oage City, as a result of the meeting, will become the junction point of a great national highway which will pass through Kansas.

The meeting was attended by all classes of people but with the farmer predominating. One of the chief matters of interest, however, was the statement of the general freight agent of the Santa Fe that his railway company would haul all supplies for building good roads entirely free of charge.

The Free Press at Oage, in commenting thereon, says:

The announcement by J. H. Koontz, general freight agent of the Santa Fe, addressing the good roads meeting here, that the Santa Fe will aid in this great movement by handling free of charge all material used in the building of the proposed good roads, was one of the notable incidents of a notable meeting. The people of Kansas should make proper acknowledgment of this concession, which in our opinion is one of the most valuable and important ever made by a railroad or other corporation for the benefit of the people. Already having completed a marvelous part in the development and upbuilding of the country by the promotion of its own lines, the great Santa Fe system now comes to the aid of the good roads builders who are making a pioneering campaign with much greater opportunity and assurance of support than the Santa Fe could obtain when it was first projected, builded and operated through the territories which these great new highways will pass.

A MIGHTY BLOW IN ARKANSAS.

The first joint debate between Senator Davis of Arkansas, who wants a second term, and ex-Congressman Brandridge of Searcy, who thinks one six-year term enough, and will continue so until he is elected, took place at Beebe last week, says the Austin Statesman. Mr. Brandridge called the roll. In fact, he called the senate roll a large number of times, and always of days when Mr. Davis was not in the senate to answer "here." These days, as was to be anticipated, he found many and not far between. It seems he was not standing on constant guard, as the Democrats of Arkansas expected he would, against the octopus, the devil fish and other creatures which are believed in some parts of Arkansas to make their lair in the senate chamber. Many times, the record shows, he has "paired" himself with some one enemy of the plain people and the common people, making sure, in this way, that the loss of his vote against Brandridge would be offset by the loss of one vote for it.

But that is not what the Arkansas "philistines" sent Jeff Davis to the senate for. They did not send him up to the field of battle to make agreements to stop fighting. They sent him there to waste in and not to waste out. Their faith in "Jeff" has been such that they would think it likely the plutocrats would be willing to "pair" more than one man against him in order to get him out of the debate, and they will not easily understand why such a mighty champion should retire from the combat with but one senator on the other side dropping out in exchange. The men of Arkansas who sent Davis to the senate will think themselves often cheated in this frequent even swapping of Senator Davis. Nothing less than a ratio of six to one would satisfy them in a pairing of Davis in the senate.

Indeed, if Brandridge gets it sufficiently scattered about over the state of Arkansas that the mighty Jeff paired by one such philistine, ordinary politician as that, Jeff's likely to come out of this campaign a little the worse for wear.

Mark Smith is a candidate for the United States senate in Arizona on the Democratic ticket and Hoval A. Smith on the Republican ticket, with the possibility that both may be elected. William Alden Smith of Michigan is a staunch Republican leader in that body, while Hoke Smith, recently sworn in as senator from Georgia, is one of the most untiered of Democrats. By maintaining a strictly bi-partisan character, the Smith family manages to catch "em acconin" and agoin'.

The joint army and navy board has decided finally that the battleship Maine was destroyed by an explosion from the outside. Spain will now lay the blame on the Cubans, and the Cubans may try to pass it along to the McNamees.

The canvassing board seems to be proceeding upon the theory that since we have already waited more than sixty years for statehood there is no need for unseemly haste at this late day.

"Where is General Reyes?" said fair to take rank with those other historic questions relating to the age of Ann and the identity of the assailant of Billy Patterson.

Emperor William has bestowed decoration of the Order of the Red Eagle on J. Pierpont Morgan. He has long been decorated with the American order of the Golden Eagle.

The indicted beef packers on trial in Chicago are trying to get a jury of fairly intelligent and educated men. The innovation will be watched with much interest.

We have no patience with the Russell mercenaries who held up two printers in the expectation of finding money on them. They should be sent to Las Vegas without a trial.

Through the process of elimination, and by just sticking around, Dr. Hyde has at last gotten the center of the stage.

It is safe to predict that the defeated candidates in tomorrow's election in Arizona will be more strongly for the recall than ever.

The first result has been the landing of the McNamees in prison. Is there enough justice in the land to put the "higher-ups" there too?

The case of the Holy Ghoster convicted of manslaughter in Portland, Me., should remind us that there is no such thing as a harmless lunatic.

Evidence collected by Detective Burns leads him to believe that the men higher up in the McNamee case are pretty low-down.

Who started that pipe dream about Aviator Rodgers refusing to fly on Sunday?

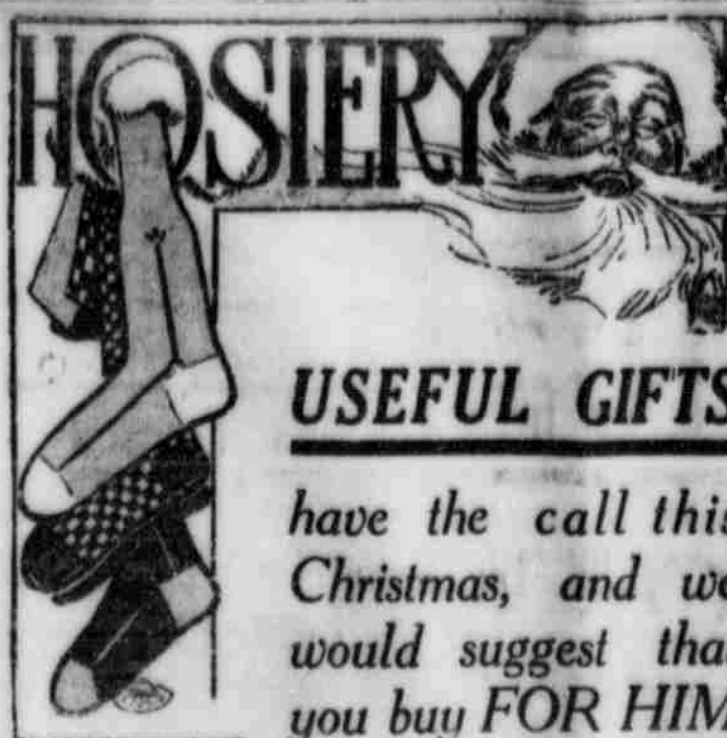

The principal trouble about the Mexican revolution is the danger that it will become a habit.

THAT'S GRATITUDE.

Brother Jones was the most religious man in his community. He went to church twice every Sunday, taught a class, and took up the collection in the Sunday school, and was the first man through the door every Wednesday night for the prayer meeting. As a devout man and a good example of what it means to be upright and good, he was a proverb and a star performer. All the mothers used to tell their children that if they would grow up like Brother Jones they would go to heaven sure as fate.

In the month of December Brother Jones fell ill, being sorely stricken with inflammatory rheumatism. He lay flat on his back for four months, and during that time the preacher and the neighbors went up and down the streets of the village, shaking their heads, and saying:

"Poor Brother Jones! It is indeed, a good thing that he is so patient and upright. If he was not a good man he would not be able to stand this dreadful affliction."

Tomorrow evening the first of the Santa Fe's new de luxe trains will leave Chicago for the coast. It will arrive here at 9:45, Thursday morning. There will be no eastbound train this week because there is no equipment on the coast to make up a de luxe, and the first one will be run next week.

The trains are "extra fast, extra fine, extra fare," and average fare of $25 being charged on them. They will carry maids, stenographers and other conveniences, and are expected to cater to the highest class of travelers.

Conductor A. E. Rathen has been selected to take one of the trains by the Pullman company. His running mate, Conductor E. C. Squires, having been selected some time ago, Mr. Squires will have the honor of making the first run.

OSLER RIGHT; YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair Is First Sign of Age; Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Color.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct the sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Every family has need of a good, reliable liniment. For sprains, bruises, soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains there is none better than Chamberlain's. Sold by all dealers.

DAN SCRUGGS SAYS NEW MEXICO IS STILL O. K.

He Returns from Six Years in South America and Will Stay Here for Benefit of Climate for a Time.

Dan Scruggs, for the past six years in South America and on the Isthmus for the Singer Sewing Machine company, returned to Albuquerque this morning and will remain here for a time for the benefit of the fine New Mexico climate and to spend a quiet vacation.

"South America is all right; so is the Isthmus of Panama," said Mr. Scruggs. "Of course, anyone who has ever lived in New Mexico will tell you forever that you have the finest climate to be found anywhere."

"The government is doing great work on the canal and the fact that there is an immense payroll among the employees results in there always being plenty of money in Panama at all seasons of the year."

"I have been for six years in South America and have met with courtesy and fair treatment from the people of all of the nations down there."

EXPRESSMEN WILL HAVE BUNK HOUSES

Wells-Fargo and Company Are Arranging Comfortable Quarters for Messengers Who End Runs Here.

Wells-Fargo and Company are making over their depot storehouse with a good many improvements. Since the installation of the up-town offices the company has had a great deal more space available, and is now using it to good advantage.

The depot house will be used for storage now, except that the night clerk will have a small office there for checking in messengers and for the reception of packages after 6 o'clock.

The upstairs portion of this house has been refurnished throughout and will be made into a bunk house for messengers whose runs end here. This arrangement of comfortable quarters will add much to the comfort of these men. The bunk operators have been given an outside dog opening from the platform, so that as little as possible of the noise from the freight house will come up to them.

JEWELRY WINDOW IS A WINNER

Shopping Crowds Comment Enthusiastically on Elaborate Holiday Display at Big Rosenwald Store.

One of the most attractive merchandise displays ever presented to the people of Albuquerque is the array of holiday jewelry in one of the big front windows of the Rosenwald store. Not only is the arrangement seasonable and artistic, but the amount of stock shown is extraordinary—enough to fill the shelves and cases of a whole jewelry store of moderate size. Such displays are a credit to the city and, incidentally, they are high tributes to the expertise of E. H. Rosenwald, the Rosenwald decorator.

The gala appearance of the Rosenwald windows is reflected throughout the big store, which is proving a Mecca for holiday buyers.

BROTHER CYPRIAN TO OKLAHOMA

Head of St. Nicholas School and La Salle Ranch at Bernalillo Is Sent to New Station.

Brother Cyprian, head of St. Nicholas school and the La Salle ranch of the Christian Brothers at Bernalillo, and a well known resident of New Mexico since 1901, will leave Thursday or Friday of this week for Oklahoma where he has been assigned to the St. John's school for Indians at Gray Horse agency. Brother Cyprian spent today in this city saying goodbye to his many friends.

Under the management of Brother Cyprian, the school and farm at Bernalillo have thrived and the attendance of pupils has grown steadily. The brother has many friends in all sections of the new state who will learn with regret of his departure.

DERAIL WILL BE COMPLETED TODAY

The new derail being placed by the Albuquerque Traction company at the intersection of its tracks with those of the Santa Fe railroad at Uras avenue is being completed this afternoon and will likely be in operation tonight.

The derail provides for the conductors crossing the railroad tracks to see that they are clear, and then throwing a lever on the far side to allow his own car to come over. The derail is always set so that if a car comes down the hill and the conductor does not pull the lever, it will be thrown off the track and stopped, should it get away from the automan on the grade. The lever must be pulled to allow the car to cross the railroad tracks.

The new device is the one ordered by the city council, and cost the company several hundred dollars. It was installed under the direction of Engineer J. R. Farwell.
